Oct 19th Eat My Art Out

The Celebration of Art continues October 19th at 4pm with Eat My Art Out, a work-in-progress dance performance. Held three times a year, directed by Clare Byrne, and curated by Paula Higa. Sunday's line-up will feature GMPA's very own

SYNC dance team opening the performance! This event provides local artists with an opportunity to show choreography and other creative projects that they're been working on.

The work shown is diverse; many genres of dance and performance can be expected in a single showing. It's an open event; the public is invited to witness movement up close in a small, intimate setting. The event is approximately one hour. There is a post-performance feedback session where comments, questions and critiques are encouraged from both the audience members and from the artists. Among the talented performers are GMPA faculty Calvin Walker, Marly Schneider & Paula Higa!
